Erected about 1839-1840, on the upper San Jose Rancho, by Don Ygnacio Palomares.* His first home, built in 1837, stood near this, and some of the bricks from the old house went into construction of the new.

It consists of five rooms in a row, with a "corredor", or porch, along the front and one side, supported by slender posts of roughly sawed lumber.

The house is now owned and well cared for by Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Nichols, and is used as a private residence.
